PEOPLE

Memories are only dreams
mellowing like fine wine,
growing better with the years.

And if, years from now,
I look back at this time,
and forget the way the snow looked falling on Mackay,
or the pressure of finals,
or your last name,
I will remember your smile.
I will remember the struggle of these years,
and the people that shared that struggle.

I will remember the keggers at the point,
the off-campus parties,
and sitting on the Herr House wall.

I will remember the people;
the friends I have loved,
the people I have avoided.
All those that made this part of life special.

I will savor these dreams like fine wine,
sipped slowly,
to make it last.

SENIORS

There's something great about being a Senior. Those four years of mid-terms, exams, and all-nighters are over. From now on it's you and the future. No more hours in the library, no more classes to be late for...

Now that's all memories. Memories of people and parties, and sitting up talking late into the night. Memories of friends you may never see...there's something sad about being a Senior.

Did you ever wonder whether or not someone was going to step out onto one of the balconies of Copley and suddenly leap, or wonder if anybody was even there at all?

You didn't let that old peaceful structure fool you. You knew that there was a lot of buzzing going on behind those walls. Like the new home of KGSP radio, and the Stylus (Park's rumor control confirmer). In Copley everyone from Freshman to Senior pounded the floors and patrolled the halls, wondering if they should leap or not...

ALUMNI

Woody Owen

For students in theatre, Alumni was their home away from home. That's where all the hours were spent preparing for those fabulous APC productions, and that's where we went to be swept into a couple of hours of fantasy when a show opened.

Then there were even those energetic art students who climbed all the way to the fourth floor; and there were occasions when movies were shown for pure enjoyment...

Anyone for a lecture by Dick Gregory, Margaret Mead, or Tony Brown. You might have heard them speak in the chapel if you were lucky enough not to have a class or work on those nights.

CHAPEL

Katy Petersen, Cheryl Kelly

Rumor control had it that there were music people working diligently in the basement of the Chapel all year, and if you were to stop by on a Friday afternoon, you might have caught a recital where they could prove it.

"Hmmm! I smell food... where is it coming from?" If you were the person asking this question, you were probably advised not to venture any further. But, if you were the insistent type, they told you it was coming from Commons-Grace's Kitchen-upstairs.

Dorsey Woods

Bob Anderson, Scott Anderson, Cindy Boswell

There were times when no one worked, and an awful lot of goofing off, and relaxing went on between classes in the Commons. Remember those hours spent sitting in the Pub having Dorsey tell you to get to work; playing pool, sitting in the T.V. room, or just enjoying friends? Then there would be those nights after dinner, when Upper Commons turned into a Disco or a movie theatre...

We think someone had to be around the gym to originate the new dances. While at a basketball or soccer game they could have heard the fans yell "HUSTLE"! Or they could have seen the team slip a "BUMP" or two or three. Who? Park??? Well...had to be the other team. Of course they must have seen the cheerleaders' style which was strickly the "NEW YORKER".

A whole year completed and now you finally moved to New Hall. How long had you been waiting for a bathroom that you didn't have to walk down the hall for, and carpeting on the floor. But wait--what's this! A room check? Oh no! your bathroom, you can't get in; the door's locked and you didn't lock it. Then you remembered that you had to walk across a bridge and through the woods just to eat or go to class. This wasn't for you, so you moved off campus. You decided you can do without the luxury!

Remember walking into that tiny brick room in Hawley as a freshman? It was you and your suitcases against a closet and a half dresser. Then came that awkward moment when your new roommate walked in and you didn't know if she snored or not... But you soon found she was as scared as you were, and you became friends. Then they hit you with the rules:

Visitation from 4:00p.m. til 11:00p.m., No smoking, and whatever else they could think of that would make you "adults".

HAWLEY

Laurie and Brillo Licari; Head Residents

Remember walking into Herr House as a freshman and meeting Dorthy Rowell, who eventually became "Mom" to everyone? Then you found your room and the bathroom down the hall, where the hot water only worked if you were lucky...

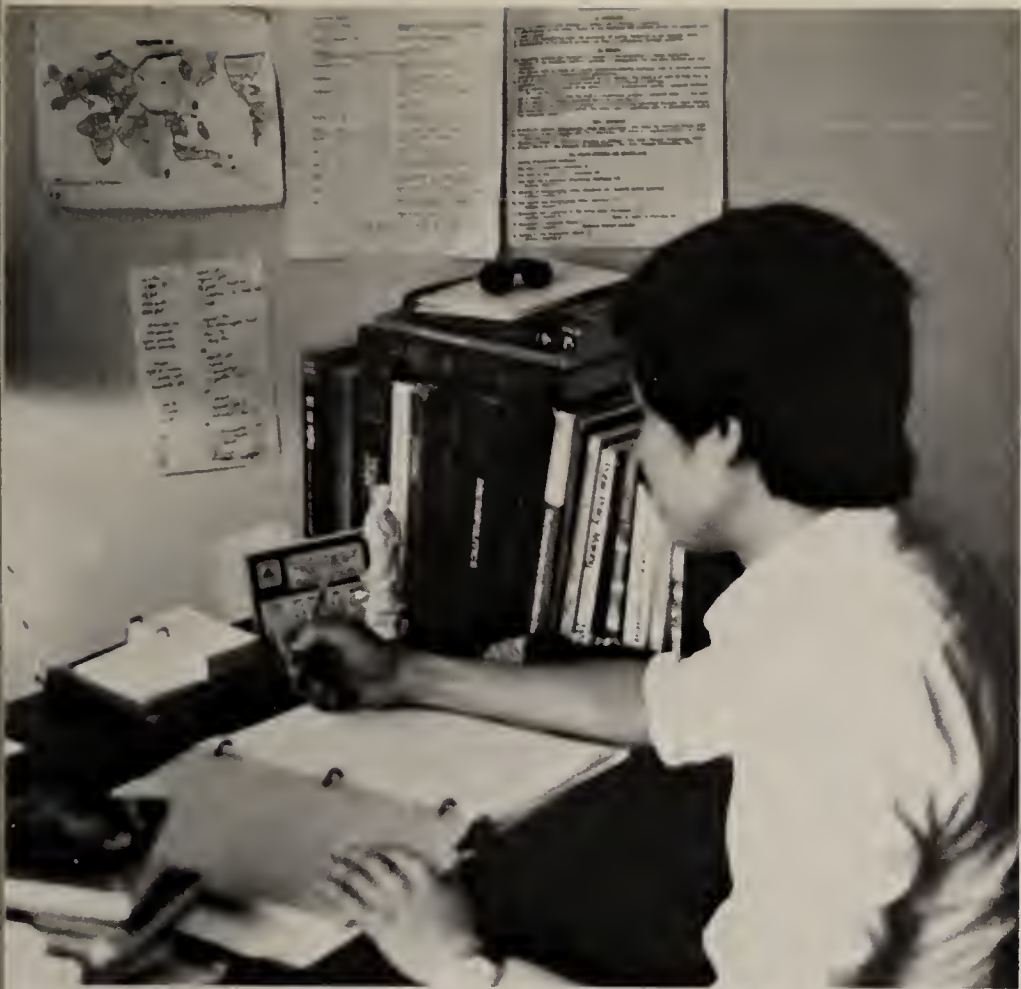

It became winter and that's when you learned that the clunky old radiator in your room didn't work nearly as well as you wished it would...or it may have overdone its job.

Whenever there was nothing else to do you could always go outside and sit on "the wall" and rap. Or go upstairs and wrestle, or make noise, until Dorothy yelled up "Cut out all that racket."

HERR HOUSE

It stand alone at the highest point on campus--unthought of; most of the time unseen.

There are stories told about a woman named Mary, who hanged herself in the Observatory. Sometimes you can still hear her scream.

We don't know if the stories are true, but there's often a strange red light coming from that hill. You can be sure that on those nights that the observatory is being haunted by an astronomy student...

WHITE HOUSE

Freshmen visiting White House

"Hey there's the White House!" "The what?" "The White House--that's where the President stays." "Yes, and we're supposed to go there to meet him..." This was the conversation of two freshmen who had just discovered the building at the bottom of the hill. Anytime they, or anybody passed it, they might see a little old man come out, smile, say "How are you?" and continue on his merry way.

More Freshmen visiting the White House

"The chair recognizes..."
 "Order! Order!" These were some of the many words you heard if you ever entered the lower Meetin' house on a Tuesday night. You weren't alarmed because you knew that it was only the P.C.S.A. listening to problems or playing the judge. While you were downstairs someone would be upstairs rolling things around. Those things would be cameras moving to orders from the director who was preparing for a show for Park College's Cable T.V.

MEETIN' HOUSE

PARK HOUSE

On any Sunday afternoon the doors of Park House were open, and students and the public were welcome to take a leisurely stroll through the history of Park College. If you're out strolling next Sunday, why not stop in?

Alone, on a hill, off the road toward New Dorm, there stands a building that few Park students realized was there -- the Synergy House. They didn't know that the Synergy House was a part of Park College's community, where dedicated workers went everyday, willing and ready to lend a sympathetic ear to run aways who had problems and/or needed a place to lay their head for awhile.

Dancing at the Disco

The people at Park have always liked to party--and the parties often started with music and dancing.

Whether it was to the flashing lights and non-stop music of the disco, or the sounds of a live band, we got together, and danced, and had a good time.

GRAND OPENING OF THE BRIG

People waiting for the cutting of the ribbon

The Park College Bowling Alley was reopened on Monday, May 16, due to funds received from the Student Activity Fees, and labor provided by the members of APO. The ribbon was cut by Dr. Barbara Higdon, Dean of the school for Community Education, and the first bowlers were members of APO.

STREET THEATRE

That's exactly what it was; a theatre held in the street with very few props and a lot of entertainment.

The actors mingled with the crowd for awhile and then things began to happen--first there were 'sing alongs'; and then a challenge to the students to pick a tune the actors didn't know.

After everybody got into the theatre mood the show was on the road and all you had to do was relax on the grass and be an audience for a wonderful Acting Company.

BLACK HISTORY WEEK

Brenda Jones, Shirley Gilmore

Black History Week began February 21 with a film of Black Culture in the 60's. During the course of the Week there was a lecture by E.V. Welcher, from Kansas City's Social Action Committee of Twenty; an exhibition of Black Contemporary Sculpture and art presented by Tim McClendon's Art Factory; and the traditional soul food dinner of chicken, greens, sweet potatoes and whatever else you could pile your plate with. The Week ended with a Disco - Fashion Show in Upper Commons, with models from the Kansas City area.

LECTURES

Jeb Stuart Magruder

Jeb Stuart Magruder, a Watergate defendant, spoke at Park College on a Wednesday evening in the Graham Tyler Memorial Chapel. He discussed Watergate, his role in it, and the shocking plans that the Nixon Administration had for the country.

Magruder's approach was "think about the progress of your government."

He served as a special assistant to President Nixon, campaign chief of staff and deputy director of the Committee for the re-election of the President. At the CRP he gave political intelligence assignments to G. Gordon Liddy and was later convicted in the Watergate conspiracy trial. He served seven months in prison and was released by a decision of John Sirica to shorten his sentence.

A thoughtful, intelligent and deeply moral man, Magruder, analyzed the Watergate chapter of history with a view towards learning lessons from it. He pointed out the need for changes in the country--not only in the way President conduct their campaigns and do their jobs, but in our systems of welfare, corrections, and treatment of aged and ill. He revealed how he has revamped his own personal philosophies and outlooks as a result of Watergate, and that he feels that "each of us can use our own "Watergates" as a means towards self-improvements."

Dick Gregory

Wednesday, Nov. 10th was designated Dick Gregory Day at Park College; the day was highlighted by Gregory's appearance in the Graham Tyler Memorial Chapel.

During the Civil Rights movement of the 1960's, Gregory was involved in major demonstrations across the country. His participation, however, cost him over a million dollars in cancelled bookings, travel expenses, and legal fees.

Gregory's appearance was after the elections and he had something to say about it:

"Wonder if he (Ford) realized that Jimmy Carter didn't win the election; Gerald Ford lost it. It's a big difference. Whenever a President loses that close he can't say anybody beat him--he lost it."

He went on to say that; "From the election you can learn, if nothing else, how to treat folks today, because you might meet them down the street and need them."

Gregory also commented on the Swine Flu saying that; "The Swine Flu is not the Black man's disease--the white man has never given anything away for free. He gave blankets to the Indians, but they were contaminated with small pox. If Ford did take a shot, it was probably vodka."

With all jokes aside, Gregory directed his message to the young people in the audience. He urged them to find out who they were and what they were about. His big plea was for college students to register to vote.

"If student on the campuses would just register to vote, we could see things turned around. Study the election and understand that there is power in your registration. Exercise your power. All colleges should do the same. Students should start organizing, not for themselves, but for those coming behind them."

"If you registered independent, you could get anything you wanted...Imagine the promises political leaders would make ...no tuition and three free, warm meals a day," he continued.

Dick Gregory was one of the most popular lecturers here, having made several appearances in recent years.

In recent years Dr. Mead has studied contemporary western culture in the light of knowledge gained during field work in small, homogenous and stable societies. A few topics that Dr. Mead has focussed her work on include problems of education and culture, personality and culture, culture change, and cross-national relationships.

The 75 year old anthropologist has traveled throughout the world in her research. She is particularly noted for her 50 year study of the people of the Admiralty Islands and the changes in their society as they entered the 20th century.

Dr. Mead's honors include 20 honorary doctorates, and is also a member of the Menninger Foundation Board of Trustees.

Because of her success and world travel, Dr. Mead received a standing ovation before she even began speaking to the large crowd that had gathered in the Little Theatre to hear her speak. Two-hundred more people were turned away at the door.

Dr. Mead stated in the earlier portion of her lecture that "the only absolutely reliable generation gap today in which everybody is on one side or the other, clearly is teenagers and their parents. There are still no teenagers parents who are on the same side of the gap anywhere in the world."

With this she went on to say that "We are, in a sense, beyond the generation gap; there are lots of young adults who are on the same side as the young people--and the gap between the young adult and the older adult doesn't seem as large."

In concluding her lecture, before a question and answer period, she smiled and said sincerely that "Older people are going to have to listen more carefully and try to understand that the experience of the young is different than it used to be." And for the young she said, "you might as well look at the older people and learn their language, it's easier, and they've got all the money, all the power and quite a lot of know how, and they're going to keep it."

Tony Brown

Tony Brown is Executive Producer of PBS-TV's BLACK JOURNAL. Before beginning his work on BLACK JOURNAL in 1970, Brown was the producer, host and moderator for several Detroit area T.V. shows. He was also city editor for the Detroit COURIER.

A native of Charleston, West Virginia, he holds a BA in Sociology and Psychology, and a MSW in Psychiatric Social Work.

Brown talked about the contributions of the Black Journal and how they had "single handedly been the instrument for the discussion of conflicting points of view."

Combative Brown relishes the prospect of challenging his audience, whether Black or White. Addressing the National School Board Association, Brown tossed some headline-making bomb shells. He told the white school board members to overcome their fears of being called racist; and he told the Black members that integration wasn't the cure-all; He said that South Boston whites had a right to maintain segregated schools, and added that it was their right to 'maintain this island of ignorance'.

He also talked about the ridiculous attempt to measure the impact of Black-oriented programming by traditional methods and that; "If Blacks true strength in the television audience is documented, we can become to the television industry what we have become commercially to other industries." He called it a "Black domino theory of self-help."

The Actor's Prologue Company produced 6 plays this year. including two experimental's directed by students. The main stage plays were ONE FLEW OVER THE CUCKOO'S NEST, OF MICE AND MEN, JACQUES BRELL and INDIANS. Chuck Gordon wrote and directed K.C. BLUE for the experimental theatre. He also directed CATCH 22.

Dear Friends~

On behalf of the 1976-1977 Yearbook Staff I would like to take this opportunity to say, "Thanks".

The spaces you have purchased for this section enabled us to publish a more professional piece.

I personally would like to say I am glad I got a chance to meet and do business with each of you. I feel very comfortable when I recommend my friends to your businesses because, I know you have a sincere interest in our community.

Again we all sincerely "Thank You" and invite you to place an advertisement in our 1977-78 edition.

Sincerely,

David

"The Best Four Years of Your Life"

May you always camp in peaceful dwells,
and let friendship be your goal,
and as the years o'ertake your youth,
may wisdom fill your soul.
Far as we treated familiar soul
our friends we never forget,
but if we pass by memories
forever we'll regret.
So take a little piece of me
and plant it in your heart, this is the one way that we will never have to part.
